Ardith Gray, Adele Shaw and Thelma Weatherford are the 3 newest members of The Artery, downtown Davis' artist collective gallery. Their work will be exhibited in the gallery space of the Artery for the month of January. They will participate in an Artist Talk, discussing their work, and processes on Friday, January 20th, 2017, from 7-8pm.

This is the first event in a series planned to invite the public to learn more about artists and their processes. The Artery is an artist owned and operated cooperative gallery of fine art and contemporary crafts. Founded in 1974, our mission is to provide public access to high quality artisan made work created by approximately 70 members. This series of artist talks was inspired by members observing the curiosity of people visiting the gallery shows and exhibitions. "People of all ages are interested and really want to know more about how artists work, their processes, skills, tools and ideas" said one member. Although members of The Artery are always friendly and willing to answer questions, the best answers come from the artists directly. The event is free and open to the public. The event will be held in the Artery at 207 G Street, between 2nd and 3rd.
